

ABSTRACT

A method of quantitatively analyzing a sample analyte involves performing matrix-assisted laser desorption ionization mass spectrometry on the sample analyte and an internal standard, and comparing the mass spectrometry of the sample analyte with the mass spectrometry of the internal standard.

05876412 060701